CELEBRATING THE ART AND THE MANY LIVES OF BOB DYLAN • NOBEL PRIZE LAUREATE SONG & DANCE MAN
ESTABLISHED 2006 BY PETER HOLST • 10TH YEAR AND RUNNING.

Welcome to another edition of the Bob Cats Newsletter. It's night time in the big city and the heat is on, heavy clouds, thick as mountains, staying still, touching spires and steeples, towers and highrises. The terrace on top of the Hohner Building is covered in a cloudy mist as Cornwell the actor throws Shakespearian soliloquys at an imaginary heaven. The ghost of the big guy sits in a golden wheelchair by the edge swigging from a bottle of probably the best beer in the world. A trumpet player practices the dorian scales on the Brickbrook Bridge. A blind man in a big hat and sun glasses roller skates down Main Street, lap dog in his arms, shouting at passers by to stay out of the way. It's Friday night and he's just got paid.

PHOTO OPPORTUNITY

FLASHES FROM THE PAST

He came from the old religion
But possessed no magic skill
Descending from machinery
He left nothing in his will
The crops are failing
The women wailing

It's in the paper at your feet
Six months in Kansas City
Down on Liberty Street

It was sad to see it
That little lady going in
Arrested for arson
Once they'd asked her where she'd been
Down on her knees
Not even a breeze

GOOD NIGHT

Streets of gold and fields of clover, watch out for the injured lover.
Destitute and wronged by many, crying out his hurt and fury.
In the wasteland of a dirty road, by the lonely pines in forest deep.
He'll return one day, a stranger with a golden smile, to see your blood he'll walk that extra mile.

Another victim of the heat
Six months in Kansas City
Down on Liberty Street

Things sure don't look too pretty
Cause a man to rob and steal
I got a full six more months out here
Can't be begging for my meals
Now look here, Baby Snooks
It doesn't matter what books

You keep underneath your seat
Six months in Kansas City
Down on Liberty Street

(Liberty Street: lost on the river: the new basement tapes)
